0-to-1 Pipeline Building

Who I Am

I'm the rep you bring in when you need someone to build pipeline from scratch and close enterprise deals without hand-holding. First sales hire at a startup that scaled to $30M ARR and got acquired by Salesforce. Four-time President's Club winner. I don't just hit quota—I consistently blow past it while building relationships that turn into renewals and expansion.

0-to-1 Environments

I thrive in environments where there's no playbook yet

Multi-Industry Expertise

I've sold into Finance, Retail Operations, and RevOps—I speak CFO and CRO

Continuous Learning

I treat losses like grad school. I document them, learn from them, and don't make the same mistake twice

Major Wins

Win #1: $680K ACV

SaaS Compensation Platform → Enterprise Retail

Deal Overview

Buyer: VP of Sales Operations at national retail chain (12,000+ employees)

Timeline: 8 months, sourced cold via LinkedIn

Result: $680K ACV with 3-year commit, expanded to European operations

The Approach

Pure outbound win. Found the VP on LinkedIn after they posted about "commission chaos" during holiday hiring surge. Sent personalized video message addressing their pain point.

Spent first call listening—discovered 900 store managers on variable comp, all tracked manually. Built custom ROI model showing $2M annual loss in admin costs and overpayments.

01

Social Selling

Personalized LinkedIn outreach based on buyer's public pain points

02

Deep Discovery

Spent 3 hours in their Excel systems with ops team to understand true pain

03

Tailored Demo

Brought in SE for retail-specific demo, not generic tech presentation

04

Strategic POC

Negotiated 90-day pilot with 100 store managers—error rate dropped 89%

89%

Error Reduction

During 90-day pilot phase

3 weeks

Time Saved

Commission processing dropped from 3 weeks to 4 days

$2M

Annual Savings

In admin costs and overpayments identified

Win #2: $420K ACV

Sales Comp Platform → Fintech SaaS

Deal Details

Buyer: CRO at Series C fintech company

Timeline: 4.5 months, inbound from webinar

Challenge: Ice cold lead—downloaded whitepaper 6 months prior, never responded to follow-ups

The Breakthrough

Sent handwritten note with Starbucks gift card: "Buy yourself a coffee while you read this case study about how [similar fintech company] scaled comp without adding headcount."

He responded immediately.

"Their problem? Scaling fast (40 AEs to 120 in 12 months) and comp plans were a disaster. Reps didn't trust commission statements, and finance was drowning."

Creative Outreach

Handwritten note revived dead lead

Peer Validation

Existing fintech CRO customer provided reference call

Urgency Creation

Scaling pain (hiring 20 AEs per quarter) drove timeline

Fast Close

From "maybe next quarter" to signed in 3 weeks

Outcome: $420K ACV, 2-year deal. Client's RevOps lead got promoted due to smooth implementation and became one of my best references.

Win #3: $510K ACV

Sales Comp SaaS → Enterprise Tech

Source

Partner referral from Salesforce
AE

Buyer

VP of Finance at B2B SaaS
company (Series D)

Timeline

6 months from referral to close

The Situation

Company was using a competitor but frustrated with lack of support and clunky reporting. Contract up for renewal—perfect timing for a competitive takeout.

Positioned as a "switching cost" conversation, not a feature war. Ran full cost-benefit analysis showing 18 hours per week saved in manual work, plus $150K in overpayments they didn't know they were making.

 The Curveball: Legal got involved late and wanted data residency guarantees we didn't have yet. Looped in CEO, got custom addendum drafted, and personally walked legal team through security protocols on two separate calls.

Competitive Takeout Strategy

Didn't trash competitor—highlighted our strengths and their pain points with current solution

Executive Sponsorship

CEO involvement when legal requirements became complex

Post-Sale Relationship

Led to two referrals worth $800K+ in pipeline

Hours Saved

Per week in manual work

Hidden Savings

In overpayments identified

Final ACV

Closed deal value

Losses (And What I Learned)

Loss #1: $390K ACV

Enterprise Retail → Lost to Status Quo

What Happened

Got deal to finish line. Legal approved. Finance approved. Waiting on CEO signature. Then... crickets for six weeks.

Implementation team was underwater with two other projects and didn't want to add a third.

Didn't discover this until week four because I was only talking to VP of Sales, not RevOps team who'd actually do the work.

Multi-Threading is Critical

Map every stakeholder in enterprise deals over $300K

Implementation Readiness

Schedule calls with implementation teams during discovery phase

"Multi-threading isn't optional in enterprise deals. Now I run a stakeholder map on every deal over $300K and build relationships with implementation early."

Loss #2: $280K ACV

SaaS Comp Platform → Lost to Competitor

The Mistake

Focused too much on features, not enough on their specific pain

The Miss

Ran generic demo instead of tailoring to their exact use case (usage-based pricing)

The Feedback

"You had the better product, but [competitor] understood our business better"

What I Learned

Discovery is everything. I now spend twice as much time in discovery as I do demoing. The quality of questions determines the quality of the sale.

My New Go-To Question: "If you could wave a magic wand and fix one thing about your comp process tomorrow, what would it be?" This gets me to real pain faster than any slide deck.

Deep Discovery First

2

Understand Their Business

Tailor Everything

Then Demo

Loss #3: $625K ACV

Enterprise Tech → Lost on Price

What Happened

Competing against cheaper competitor. Couldn't justify price difference. Pitched value, ROI, customer success—but CFO just wanted lowest number.

Tried discounting to save the deal. Manager approved 20% off. They still went with the competitor.

The Hard Truth

If you're losing on price, you lost in discovery.

I didn't build enough value early enough. Was trying to establish ROI during negotiations instead of in the first two calls.

"These losses taught me more than my wins. Each one made me a better rep. I document every loss, analyze what went wrong, and never make the same mistake twice."

Client References

Sarah L., CRO

Fintech SaaS Company

"Connor didn't just sell us software—he understood our business and helped us scale our comp strategy. A year later, we've doubled our sales team and haven't added a single person to finance. He's the reason we're a customer."

Mike D., VP of Sales Operations

Enterprise Retail Company

"Connor was the only rep who actually listened. He spent time in our systems, understood our pain, and delivered a solution that worked. We've referred him to three other companies since."

📌 Note: Both clients have provided referrals that generated additional pipeline opportunities worth over $800K combined.
